

Comparative and Superlative Adjectives

Unit 2: Comparative and superlative adjectives

Objective

Describe the type of hair your family and you have by using comparative and superlative adjectives.

Presentation

Types of Wavy Hair

Did you know there are multiple types of wavy hair? Knowing what type your texture falls into can determine how you care for and style your hair.

Type A

This type of hair is categorized as mostly straight while a slight “S” curve in the hair. This wave is more fine and straight at the root and then forms subtle waves and volume towards the ends.

Type B

B wavy hair is slightly more wavy towards the ends and prone to frizz. B wavy hair has slightly more defined waves, but is still straight at the root. This type is more prone to frizz, but acts well with curl activating and defining creams.

Type C

C hair is the most wavy and thickest type of hair in this category.

This is the waviest and thickest type of wavy hair. C hair is close to forming curls rather than just waves and it is the most voluminous of the three types.

Practice

1) What type of hair does your family have? Compare the type of hair you and your family have. Use the vocabulary from Presentation.

Example: My sister Sally has long hair. It's red and curly. My sister Alice has the longest hair of my family.

2) Take 2 photos of your favorite person. (A singer, a friend, a boy/girlfriend). Write about the style of hair this person had some years ago and the style they have now. Introduce this person to 2 or 3 partners in the class.

Example:

Anya is an actress. In 2018 her hair was shorter. It was red and wavy. Now, in 2022, she has straight hair. It's much longer than before. I like her hair very much. She looks really beautiful.
